New Training and Editing Services

By Roger Keays, 5 April 2007

In order to help you get the most out of your website, Sunburnt has launched new training and editing services. These services are offered at a reduced rate to our regular development/design fee.

The training and editing rates are now $45 / hr and this work is being handled by our new training and editing person, Michelle Kiob. Michelle is currently finishing a MA in Writing, Editing and Publishing at the University of Queensland and has already spent several months in the background working on your sites here at Sunburnt.

If you've been meaning to do some work on your website, but feel like you're being held back by lack of confidence with the software, now is the chance to take advantage of the new rates. We are offering training in person, or by the phone if your office is not located in Brisbane. Alternatively come into our office in St Lucia and we'll run through our program. Just contact us on 3117 9661 to arrange a suitable time.

We are also pleased to announce the availability of a new search module which enables your visitors to search your site just like they would at Google. For details and prices, please visit the recently updated prices page.

Sunburnt Web Services would also like to wish you a safe and happy Easter!
